

It was just another ordinary morning. Teamwork and his flying robot, Donny, were taking a walk in the park. Suddenly they heard a group of children arguing nearby. Tama walked over and asked, "Hey, what's going on? Why are you guys arguing?".

A boy with messy hair, who seemed to be the leader, turned around and sighed. "We're trying to build an iron machine to fight the 'Boomworx', which is a machine that can make a huge amount of homework, but nobody is cooperating." He introduced himself as Terry, and explained their big problem.

A week earlier, Terry and his friends had been ordinary students at Olive Square School, handling manageable amounts of homework. Suddenly, one day, the amount of homework surged, and couldn't be completed on time.

When Terry was exploring the school, during a normal noon break, he saw the boom walks in the garage. Their strictest teacher, Mrs. Grimble, was feeding it with more and more paper. When she caught him spying, she pushed him away. At that moment, Terry decided, "We have to stop it."

"We need your help," Terry said to Tama. "If we build an iron machine and send it to fight the Boomworx, we can destroy it for good."

Tama decided to join the group and help the kids. He patted Donny's metal shoulder and said, "Donny and I are in."

First, the team found a place in the middle of the mountains and forest as their secret base. Then, Tama assigned the team members to gather different materials - scrap metals, wires, and even some broken toys. Every night, the team worked together in their hidden workshop. Donny gave them some useful information on how to build a robot. The team worked together having fun. One month later, the team finished building the Iron Man. It was a big machine, two metres tall and had four machine guns.

On Sunday morning, the team decided to take action. Donny drove the Iron Man and flew to the school. The team followed and were ready to fight anyone who tried to stop them. Donny flew to the garage and saw the Boomworx machine. But the Boomworx wasn't alone since Mrs. Grimble had gathered a group of robot graders to protect it.

The helpers ran to the Iron Man and tried to stop him. But the Iron Man used his guns to fight back. Donny flew out and helped Terry, Tama, and the rest of the team. The team were so fast moving behind the Iron Man and quickly destroyed the Boomworx with bombs.

The team won the battle. The students at Olive Square School finally got saved from the Boomworx machine.
