

The Forest Rescuers

This is the story of Sustainability Suki and her sidekick friend Suzuki about how they saved the forest.

Sustainability Suki had the power to talk to the plants and understand their feelings as she loved them. Sympathetic Suzuki had the power to fight with anyone whoever was ruining or destroying the forest with the help of plants. Also Suki and Suzuki both had the power to stay without oxygen.

One day Suki and her friend Suzuki were wandering in the forest when some men came to the forest to cut the trees. Suddenly Suki and Suzuki appeared and tried to stop them but they didn't. Suki and Suzuki decided to use their powers to fight with them.

Sympathetic Suzuki absorbed some of the weeds in her that would hold the men and make them fly in the air. Suzuki tried the weeds on the men. The weeds flourished and the men started flying in the air. At first they liked it but after few seconds Suzuki made them go higher and higher. The men started getting scared and saying sorry.

So Suki asked Suzuki to let them come down as she thought that they must be feeling contrite. But as soon as Suzuki let them come down they again started doing the felony, cutting down the trees.

Then Suki took her turn and asked the plants for help. The poisonous ones started making poison that no one could contend except Suki and Suzuki. Suki threw the poison made by the plants. The poison didn't work on Suki and Suzuki but did work on the men. The men could not resist so they ran to the truck, took out some mask and wore them and again started to cut the trees.

This time Suki and Suzuki asked the plants, the trees and the whole forest to stop giving oxygen. The plants, trees and the forest stopped giving oxygen. The men started fainting but in few seconds Suzuki told Suki that the animals were also facing the same problem. So both of them asked the forest to again start giving oxygen.

Then they thought of another plan as the men were not stopping.

Suki and Suzuki also had the power to talk to the animals. As they had no other choice Suki and Suzuki asked some of the animals to chase away the men until they go back.

The animals chased and chased the men until they did not run away. There were elephants, jackals zebras and monkeys who were chasing them. Finally the men got tired and realised their mistake. They ran to the truck and drove away back to the city.

From that day onwards no one dared to come to the forest to cut the trees. Instead everyone started growing more plants.

Sustainability Suki and Sympathetic Suzuki said "Go green, save and grow plants and save earth". Suki, Suzuki, plants, trees, bushes, weeds and the whole forest lived gleefully ever after.

Moral of the story: "Never cut plants as they give us life"
